Evian

With a billion and a half liters sold each year in 140 countries, the mineral water of Evian is world famous. This global success sometimes makes us forget that Evian is also a spa resort, since the discovery, at the end of the 18th century, of the therapeutic properties of the iconic Cachat spring.

In the Belle Epoque, Evian is a fashionable resort, the "Pearl of Lake Geneva" boasted posters, brochures and tourist guides. Frequented by the big international bourgeoisie, it knows brilliant worldly seasons, punctuated by the Feast of Roses, the nautical regattas and the meeting of motor boats. Famous guests such as Gustave Eiffel, the Maharajahs of Kapurthala and Baroda, and later the Sultan of Morocco, Prince Takamatsu or the Aga Khan help to maintain his notoriety. At the same time, the care evolves, passing from a certain empiricism to the rigorous course of diuresis.
